> The New Panel of Strty Nearly Exhansted - The Requisite Number Obtained Several Times, but Chattenged.

Soon after the opening of the doors of the City Hall this morning the officials of the Criminal Court began to make active preparations for the assembling of a big crowd to witness the third day of Frank Ward's trial. Chairs and benches were crowded into every available space within the bar. Speciators began to assemble at an early hour, but they were reslously kept without the bar by the officers, who declared their Intention of admitting only witnesses, talesmen and lawyers to seats. The first persons to take seats within the bar were two of the sixty newly-drawn talesmen. Others began to drop in one by one and soon almost all of the sixty were present, and a very lotelligent and solid-body of citizens they appeared.

Some doubts, however, are expressed as to whether a jury can be secured from these staty, as it has always been wife because of refusal of the woman to the peculiar experience of the court live with him met her on the street this that, when they have to go out of the

Shortly before 10 o'clock Mr. Ward, accompanied by coursel and his little son, appeared in the court and took his usual seat in the rear of his lawyers. Chief Justice Bingham was delayed a few minutes and did not take his place until a short time after 10 o'clock. The court was opened in the usual manner by the erier and the clerk then called the jury and the eleven who were seated yesterday all answered to their names.

Michael Hallinan, who had been passed, requested to be excused on account of his wife's illness. Judge Jore Wilson, on behalf of the defense, stated that they were desirous of having Mr. Hallinan to serve on the jury, and to quested that he should be been with excused.
